Hourly rate: Agreed hourly rate. If there is no agreement within 30 days of the dealer's written request, the dealer chooses the greater of (1) retail customer labor rate = total retail labor sales ÷ hours for the preceding month, or (2) a gross-profit-percentage method using the mean technician wage. The rate is applied uniformly and can never be below the rate paid on Jan. 2, 2008. Requests ≤ semiannually; increases retroactive to claims filed 15 days after receipt of the request.

Statute quotes

Claims (§ 320.696(1)(c); see (2) and § 320.64(25)): "Compensation not paid to a motor vehicle dealer within 30 days after receipt of a claim is not timely."
Chargebacks (§ 320.64(25); see § 320.696(2)): "Audits of warranty, maintenance, and other service-related payments shall be performed by an applicant or licensee only during the 12-month period immediately following the date the claim was paid."
Rate (§ 320.696(4)(b)1.; see (4)(b)2., (4)(c), (5)): "dealer's hourly labor rate for retail customer repairs, determined by dividing the amount of the dealer's total labor sales for retail customer repairs by the number of total labor hours that generated those sales for the month preceding the request"
Factory time (§ 320.696(4)(b) (flush text)): "A licensee shall not eliminate flat-rate times from or establish an unreasonable flat-rate time in its warranty repair manual, warranty time guide, or any other similarly named document."

Notes

Coverage depends on the issuer: § 320.696 reaches warranty, maintenance plan, extended warranty, CPO warranty and service contracts 'issued by the licensee or its common entity, unless issued by a common entity that is not a manufacturer', plus recalls, campaigns, authorized goodwill, directives and bulletins. The licensee must keep reasonable flat-rate times, including for new models. 'Retail customer repair' is not limited to the same model or model year. The statute sets no claim approval clock or deemed-approval rule; only payment within 30 days of receipt.
